TEMPORARY PASSENGER-HOISTS

PURSUANT to the provisions of the "Workmen's Compensation Act," the Workmen's Compensation Board, following a hearing held in Vancouver, B.C., on November 9th, 1955, has repealed Accident-prevention Regulation 295, and has substituted the following therefor, effective on and after January 1st, 1956:—

"295. Except as provided for in the 'Coal-mines Regulation Act,' the 'Metalliferous Mines Regulation Act,' and the regulations governing the installation, operation, and maintenance of freight and passenger elevators, dumb-waiters, and moving stairways passed pursuant to the provisions of the 'Factories Act,' no workman shall ride, or be permitted to ride, on any material hoist, construction hoist, or other elevating equipment, unless such hoist or equipment meets the following requirements:—

"(NOTE.—The principal purpose of these regulations is to allow for the use of equipment which will safely transport men to work areas on high structures such as buildings, dams, and similar structures during the course of construction.)

"(DEFINITION.—For the purpose of these regulations, a 'temporary passenger-hoist' means any equipment on which workmen may be required or permitted to be transported in a vertical direction above the surface of the ground, and where such equipment is not a permanent part of any structure.)

"(a) Strength of Structure.—The structure forming the hoistway and supporting the cage, together with all hoisting gear and equipment, shall be of good mechanical construction, in accurate alignment, securely anchored, and of sufficient strength and stability to safely withstand imposed stresses, including those stresses imposed by designed rate of acceleration and deceleration, and to safely perform the functions for which the whole equipment and every part thereof is used. A factor of safety of ten shall be used to determine permissible stresses.

"(b) Hoistways.—(1) Hoistways shall be enclosed to a height of not less than six feet (6 ft.) from the floor at each landing on all sides not used for loading and unloading and where workmen might be struck by any moving part of the hoist or where there is a possibility of workmen falling into the hoistway. For protection on sides used for loading and unloading, refer to section (c), Hoistway Gates.

"(2) When material is stored near the hoistway, the enclosure shall be so constructed as to prevent such material falling into the hoistway.

"(3) Hoistways adjacent to a stairway shall be enclosed to a height of six feet (6 ft.) above each stair-tread.

"(4) Enclosures of hoistways may be building walls or constructed of wood or metal. Boards shall be of material not less than one inch (1 in.) nominal thickness, plywood of three-eighths of an inch ($\frac{3}{8}$ in.) nominal thickness, or metal of not less than No. 13 U.S. gauge, metal or wire. Spaces between wooden boards shall not exceed one inch (1 in.), and metal grille-work shall not have a mesh larger than two inches (2 in.).

"(5) When the cage floor is level with the lowest terminal landing, there shall be provided in the hoistway a clear space of not less than three and one-half feet ($3\frac{1}{2}$ ft.) between the lowest point of the under-structure of the cage and any obstruction in the bottom of the hoistway, exclusive of any buffer or similar device for arresting the motion of the cage.

"(6) There shall be sufficient unobstructed space above the highest point of the cage, when the cage floor is level with the highest terminal landing, to permit automatic stopping devices stopping the car independently of the operating control without any part of the cage coming in contact with any part of the overhead structure.

"(c) Hoistway Gates.—(1) Each landing opening in a hoistway enclosure shall be equipped with a door or gate set within four inches (4 in.) of the landing threshold, and shall be at least six feet (6 ft.) in height. Hoistway doors or gates shall be capable of withstanding a force of seventy-five pounds (75 lb.) applied perpendicularly without permanent deformation and without being sprung from their guides. Any opening in the door or gate shall be capable of rejecting a ball two inches (2 in.) in diameter.

"(2) Every hoistway door or gate shall be equipped with a device which will prevent the operation of the car unless the door or gate is closed, and which will prevent the opening of any door or gate from the landing side, except the one at which the car is opposite.

"(d) Guides.—(1) Every hoistway shall be equipped with guide-rails to match appropriate guides on the hoist cage for the purpose of controlling the direction of motion of the cage.

"(2) All guide-rails shall be of substantial construction, securely fastened to the sides of the hoistway structure, and supported by a secure foundation.

"(e) Hoist Cages.—(1) The frame of hoist cages to which hoisting-cables, guide-shoes, and platform are attached shall be substantially constructed of metal other than cast iron.

"(2) Cages shall be tightly enclosed to a height of at least six feet (6 ft.) on all sides, except for openings necessary for loading and unloading. For protection of openings for loading and unloading see section (f), Cage Gates. Enclosures shall be of material that will not deflect more than one-quarter of an inch ($\frac{1}{4}$ in.) under a force of seventy-five pounds (75 lb.) applied perpendicularly, and shall be secured to the cage floor in such a manner that they cannot become loose or displaced in ordinary service.

"(3) The top of the cage shall be of solid metal construction, strong enough to sustain a load of one hundred and fifty pound (150 lb.) applied at any point.

"(4) The top shall be hinged along a line approximately eighteen inches (18 in.) from the front of the car or there shall be provided in the top an emergency exit not less than sixteen inches (16 in.) wide nor less than four hundred square inches (400 sq. in.) in area, arranged with a cover held in place by thumb-screws that permit the cover to be removed from both the inside and outside of the car.

"(f) Cage Gates.—(1) Any opening in the cage enclosure used for entrance and exit shall be equipped with a substantial gate or door which, when closed, shall guard the full opening up to a height of at least six feet (6 ft.).

"(2) Each cage gate or door shall be fitted with a device that will effectively prevent motion of the cage while the door is open or partially open.

"(g) Cage Suspension.—(1) Cages shall be suspended by means of at least two (2) wire ropes, each rope and its attachments being of such strength as to carry with safety the weight of the cage and its maximum safe load. One of the ropes may be fastened to a counterweight.

"(2) Each cage shall be provided with a safety device attached to the cage frame which shall be capable of stopping and sustaining the cage with its rated load in the event of failure of the hoisting-ropes or any part of the hoisting-gear.

"(3) Each cage shall be provided with upper and lower normal terminal stopping devices arranged to automatically stop the cage at normal speed within the top and bottom travel limits, independently of the operating devices.

"(4) No cage hoisting-cable shall be lengthened or repaired by splicing.

"(5) New rope shall be installed as a hoisting-cable. Rope that is two (2) years old shall not be used for cage suspension.

"(h) Machinery.—(1) Hoisting-drums and leading-sheaves shall be of cast iron or steel, and shall have finished grooves of the correct size for the cable being used. The diameter of sheaves and drums shall be not less than forty (40) times the diameter of the cable.

"(2) All cables shall be securely anchored to the drum, and shall have at least three (3) turns of cable on the drum when the cage has reached the extreme limit of its travel.

"(3) Drums and sheaves shall be provided with flanges or other devices to prevent movement of the cable over the side of the drum or sheave.

"(4) Power for driving drums or sheaves shall be transmitted directly or through gearing. Belt- or chain-driven equipment is prohibited.

"(5) Hoisting-drums shall not be fitted with a pawl and ratchet gear which requires the pawl to be disengaged before the cage can be lowered.

"(6) Hoisting equipment shall be provided with a speed-governing device which will effectively prevent speeds exceeding one hundred and twenty per cent (120%) of designed speeds.

"(7) All operating equipment shall be adequately protected from the effects of weather. Electrical equipment shall be of an approved type and installed in conformity with the 'Electrical Energy Inspection Act.'

"(i) Brakes.—Each hoisting-drum shall be equipped with brakes capable of bringing to rest the maximum load at maximum speed within the over-travel limits.

"(2) The braking and operating mechanisms shall be so arranged that the brake is applied when the operating lever, handle, or switch is not in the operating position.

"(3) All hoisting mechanisms driven by electric power shall be so arranged that the brakes will be applied automatically in the event of power failure.

"(j) Controls.—The controls for operating the hoist shall be so arranged that it is necessary to operate the hoist from the cage.

"(k) Safe Loads.—(1) The safe working-load of every hoist shall be determined by a competent person, and shall be plainly marked on every cage. The maximum number of persons that can be safely carried shall also be determined, and this shall be marked on the cage. No greater load and no greater number of persons than the safe limits shall be carried or permitted to be carried.

"(2) When persons other than the operator are being transported in a hoist, no materials, other than light articles readily carried by a passenger, shall be transported with the persons. Material shall not be transported when it is suspended from the cage structure, projected through the cage structure, or supported by the top of the cage.

"(3) The operator of the hoist shall be responsible for keeping the load within safe limits and for maintaining proper discipline of persons riding the hoist.

"(4) When the operator has any doubt as to the safety of the equipment, the safe condition of the load, or the behaviour of the passengers, he shall refuse to operate the hoist, and shall immediately report the condition to a responsible supervisor, who will then be responsible for determining the action to be taken.

"(l) Operation.—(1) No person shall operate, or be permitted to operate, any hoist until he has been thoroughly trained in the operation of same, has demonstrated to the supervisor in charge of the hoist that he is a competent operator, and has been instructed and authorized by the proper supervisor to operate the hoist.

"(2) The operator shall not leave the cage unattended without taking measures to prevent the unauthorized use of the hoist.

"(3) An operator's log-book shall be kept in every hoist cage for the purpose of recording any unsatisfactory working condition, any repairs or adjustments made to any part of the hoist, tests conducted, and all unusual circumstances in the operation of the hoist. Each entry shall be signed by the person making the report, and countersigned by any other operators at the start of their shift, and by the supervisor in charge of the hoist operation.

"(m) Signals.—Each hoist shall be provided with some suitable means of communication by distinct and definite signals between the cage and each landing.

"(n) Tests.—(1) When a hoist is first installed and after any substantial alteration or repair, it shall be examined and tested by a competent person before being used to transport workmen. When a new hoisting-rope is installed, at least two complete trips shall be made before workmen are transported in the hoist cage. An entry shall be made in the cage log-book stating the nature of the test, the conditions revealed, and the permissible safe load.

"(2) At the beginning of each shift the operator shall satisfy himself that the controls, signalling system, and limit stops are in good order before transporting workmen.

"(3) At least once a week a competent person shall examine the hoist structure, hoisting equipment, hoisting-ropes, limit stops, and brakes to determine if there are any defects or deterioration that might affect the safety of workmen.

"(4) At least once every three months the emergency stopping device shall be tested in a suitable manner that will permit the functioning of the device.

"(5) If any examination or test reveals a condition that might endanger workmen, the hoist shall not be used until the dangerous condition is remedied.

"(o) Permission to Operate.—(1) No employer shall operate any hoist for the carrying of workmen which has not been in operation for the period of seven (7) months last preceding, or which has been relocated within that period, until leave therefor is obtained from the Board. Written application for permission to operate such hoist shall be received at the Board offices at least one week prior to the intended commencement of operation. Applications shall give the following information:—

"(a) Location where hoist is to be installed.

"(b) Type of hoist.

"(c) Maximum speed.

"(d) Capacity.

"(e) Size of hoist platform.

"(f) Type of safety device.

"(g) Type of speed governor.

"(i) Diameter of sheaves and drums.

"(j) Number and size of cables.

"(k) Method of roping.

"(m) Depth of pit.

"(n) Overrun clearance.

"(o) Such other information that the Board may require.

"(2) In the event of a serious accident to a workman resulting from the operation of the hoist, or when there has been a failure of a serious nature of any part of the hoist, the hoist shall not be used until leave to operate has been obtained from the Board."

Dated at Vancouver, B.C., this 24th day of January, 1956.
